is a lawful permanent resident ("green card" holder) from Jordan under A# . I deported his brother in the area by now. If is convicted of armed robbery and sentenced to a year or more in prison, that would qualify as an aggravated felony conviction as a crime of violence. Barring any asylum/fear issues, that would make for a strong deportation case.

is a lawful permanent resident from Iraq under A# . Same goes for him—an armed robbery conviction with a year or more imprisonment would make a good deportation case. He'll probably be tougher to deport, due to potential refugee/asylum issues and/or obtaining travel documents from Iraq.

Any chance you saw passports for or ?

brother [REDACTED] is a lawful permanent resident ("green card" holder) from Jordan under A# [REDACTED]. I deported his brother [REDACTED] A# [REDACTED] IR [REDACTED] to Jordan in 2014.
